

Graduate Student Position Available

A graduate student position is available in the Department of Biology, University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario to work on the project aimed at “Identification and Characterization of a Cysteine Protease Gene in Tobacco for Use in Recombinant Protein Production”. The student will work within a broad program in molecular biology and genomics at the Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada Research Station, which houses state of the art facilities for molecular biology research, and is located just 10 minutes from the University of Western Ontario campus. Student will be enrolled in the Department of Biology (<http://www.uwo.ca/biology>) and will undertake normal departmental duties.

The candidate should be highly motivated, have a B. Sc or M. Sc degree from recognised university and is expected to have a strong background in cellular and molecular biology and biochemistry with excellent communication skills. Interested applicants should submit a curriculum vita and the names and contact information of three references to:

Dr. Sangeeta Dhaubhadel
Genomics and Biotechnology
Southern Crop Protection and Food Research Centre
Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada
London , Ontario, Canada N5V 4T3
Email: sangeeta.dhaubhadel@agr.gc.ca
Fax: (519) 457-3997
Phone: (519) 457-1470 ext. 670
<http://www4.agr.gc.ca/AAFC-AAC/display-afficher.do?id=1181935621272&lang=eng>