Western Libraries invites applications from candidates who are passionate about the opportunity to transform our existing metadata work into the next generation of academic library services. We are seeking creative and forward-thinking candidates for two Metadata Management Librarian positions to commence as soon as possible. These are Full-Time positions to be filled as Probationary or Continuing Appointments depending on the experience of the successful candidates. The positions are expected to begin October 1, 2018, although alternate start dates may be arranged.

Reporting to the Head, Discovery, Description, & Metadata, the Metadata Management Librarians work as members of the Content Management, Discovery, & Access (CMDA) Unit. CMDA comprises three teams: Collections & Content Strategies; Discovery, Description, & Metadata; and Acquisitions. Metadata Management Librarians will work collaboratively with members of these teams to anticipate and ensure proactive provision of access to high quality content, regardless of format and in alignment with strategic priorities. These teams ensure that users experience seamless, convenient discovery of and access to collections through strategic user-informed selection, management, and provision of access to content that supports research, scholarship, and teaching at Western University.

The successful candidates will have knowledge of and skills in cataloguing and metadata, and may be called upon to:

- Lead projects to advance the development and implementation of emerging services that require metadata expertise
- Serve as a resource expert for cataloguing staff and perform some original cataloguing
- Troubleshoot issues related to workflow, cataloguing, and authority control
- Develop, evaluate, and implement policies, procedures, and workflows to facilitate discovery of and access to materials
- Train and mentor colleagues on discovery, description, and metadata-related topics
- Contribute to the design and implementation of metadata standards and best practices
- Contribute to the development and application of metadata crosswalks and data conversion routines
- Maintain awareness of and engagement with national and international trends and developments in cataloguing and metadata standards as well as bibliographic and authority control
- Work collaboratively with colleagues across Western Libraries in providing metadata expertise
Required Qualifications and Experience

Required:

- Master's degree from a program accredited by the American Library Association (ALA), or equivalent degree, or a PhD degree in library and information science, or equivalent degree
- Knowledge of AACR2, RDA, LCSH, MESH, NLM and LC classifications, MARC formats, metadata schema and bibliographic and authority control
- Ability to work with faculty, staff, students, and community members independently and as a team member respecting diversity, equality, and inclusiveness
- Demonstrated ability to communicate effectively in multiple formats to diverse audiences
- Attention to detail
- Ability to apply critical thinking when planning, prioritizing, and organizing work activities
- Ability to exercise creativity, resourcefulness, and initiative in analyzing and resolving complex problems
- Flexibility working with multiple assignments and timelines
- Skill in planning, implementing, and assessing projects
- Aptitude for learning new technologies, software, and standards

Preferred:

- Experience in editing and transforming metadata
- Experience in traditional cataloguing
- Working knowledge of languages and/or scripts other than English
- Familiarity with linked data principles and tools
- Familiarity with markup languages: XML; protocols, such as the OAI-PMH; and approaches to conceptual modeling, such as RDF (i.e., linked data)
- Knowledge of programming languages and data manipulation tools, such as Ruby, Python, XSLT, and OpenRefine
