Toleration

The seminar will begin by examining the advocacy and defence of toleration by John Locke in the 1790s. It will then turn to recent attempts to ground the idea of toleration, in, for example, moral pluralism, agonism, or epistemic fallibilism, and discuss the limits of toleration in issue areas such as freedom of expression and association.