Western is home to the McIntosh Gallery, which is currently adding digitized images to its database of 3,300 works. By providing ready access to its collection, the McIntosh, along with a digital collection of more than 40,000 images housed within the Department of Visual Arts, is helping scholars in various disciplines research and interpret visual culture.