Apply for Funding

CIHR is transitioning its funding opportunities to an automated application process through the use of ResearchNet. Until this transition is complete, some funding opportunities require the use of ResearchNet to apply for funding, while others continue using CIHR WebForms. A full list of funding opportunities requiring ResearchNet can be found on CIHR's web site.

If the funding opportunity requires the use of ResearchNet to apply, it will be stated in the "How to Apply" section of the funding opportunity.

All other funding opportunities continue to require the use of CIHR WebForms to apply.

Note: ResearchNet will allow you to transfer information from previous applications, however, there is no transfer mechanism in place for CIHR WebForms systems.

Click on the appropriate link below to begin your application. You may view the funding opportunity description for any of the opportunities listed below by clicking on the icon to the left of the link.

The Canadian Institutes of Health Research (CIHR) is a federal granting agency in Canada. As of September 15, 2011, the policies of the three federal granting agencies (CIHR, SSHRC and NSERC) will be harmonized, and specific minima or maxima pertaining to stipends paid from grants will no longer be in effect. In addition, the agencies will remove the restriction on providing supplements from grants ("top-ups") to awardees.

Please complete the tasks below and submit your registration electronically. You do not need to send a paper copy.

The registration process provides CIHR with the information it needs to set up effective peer review committees and recruit potential external reviewers for your application.
