

Funded PhD Research Positions in Gender and Global Political Economy

Dr. Bipasha Baruah (Department of Women's Studies and Feminist Research at Western University) is recruiting 2 PhD students (beginning September 2015) as part of a SSHRC-funded project in India on urban women and livelihoods.

Students will be provided with competitive funding, guidance, and opportunities for funded in-depth fieldwork and research dissemination on a multi-sited research project in India.

Applicants must have an appropriate background in Gender and Development and Global Political Economy. Applicants with Hindi/Urdu language skills, previous fieldwork experience in India/South Asia and a 4.0 GPA will be particularly competitive.

Interested applicants should send a letter of interest and current CV to Bipasha Baruah (bbaruah@uwo.ca) by December 15, 2014. The deadline for admission to Western's graduate programs in Women's Studies is January 15, 2015. More information on the department can be found at <http://www.uwo.ca/womens/>
