At least 60% in 1.0 of English 1020E or 1022E or 1024E or 1035E or 1036E or both English 1027F/G and 1028F/G, or permission of the Department.

Unless you have either the prerequisites for this course or written special permission from your Dean to enroll in it, you may be removed from this course and it will be deleted from your record. This decision may not be appealed. You will receive no adjustment to your fees in the event that you are dropped from a course for failing to have the necessary prerequisites.

Course Description
This course will trace some of the major developments in British literature from its oldest texts to contemporary fiction. Unlike 1020E and 1022E, Major British Authors introduces students to the British tradition in a chronological survey with attention to historical and literary-historical contexts. We will read selected pieces which are representative of their age and genre, but also simply because they are examples of the English language at its finest. All readers should find many texts which will pique their curiosity and excite their critical talents.

At the same time, we will explore the multitude of ways scholars have approached British literature by reading, discussing and writing about criticism. We will therefore engage with critical scholarship throughout the year and discuss strategies for entering into critical discussions and planning, organizing and writing research papers. Assignments will ask students to engage deeply with the texts themselves and with the critical debates surrounding those texts.

Objectives:
Successful students who complete the course will be better able to:
- Discuss the development of English literature and textual traditions across time;
- Recognize texts’ relationship to that tradition;
- Recognize and discuss the rhetoric and structure of texts using appropriate critical tools;
- Compose essays with complex arguments;
- Find relevant secondary sources;
- Write cogent summaries and reviews of secondary criticism;
- Successfully incorporate criticism into your essays.
