GSWS1024F: Introduction to Equity, Diversity and Human Rights©

We study, research and live on the traditional lands of Anishinaabeg, Haudenosaunee, Lenape, Attawandaron and Huron-Wendat peoples and we consider and complicate the meaning of doing this work on these lands, in our course.

Course Description and Learning Objectives:

Welcome to University! Welcome to Gender, Sexuality, and Women's Studies! Welcome to WS1024G! This introductory course surveys history, theory and practice in the fields of equity, diversity, and human rights and it locates them in the broader conversation about the multiple meanings of social justice. More specifically, the course explores how equity, diversity, and human rights address, challenge or are implicated with power and enduring systems of social stratifications, like gender, race and class. To pursue this agenda, we will read texts from anthropology, sociology, political theory, gender and feminist studies, and law. We will also track select stories and news from the world. This 'conversation' between theory and reality, will help us understand each better: news will help us understand concepts, and concepts will help us interpret complex social world. The course examines the following questions: what are human rights and what does it mean to have such rights? How are equity, diversity and human rights shaped by state and market interests? What visions of justice do the frameworks of equity, diversity and human rights enable and which do they limit? How do frameworks of equity, diversity and human rights interact with enduring systems of social stratifications, like gender race and class?

In this class the students will learn the foundational concepts of social studies, like structure and agency, state and nation, universal and particular, individual and collective, forward looking/progressive or retrospective justice, as well as gender, race, class, culture and citizenship. They will also gain introductory knowledge of different visions of social justice. Finally, students will summarize and analyze complex reading material; write with clarity and precision; explore ideas by reading, thinking, listening and sharing; practice doing research to answer analytically significant questions; practice time- and grade-management.

Readings:

Students will find all the course readings (including links to videos) in the Course Reading tab on OWL and the schedule of readings is listed below.

Assignments and Expectations:

In this course, curiosity about the material, working through problems, struggling to understand, transforming the ways in which we see the world, analyzing and grappling with complexity are encouraged, nurtured and rewarded. Further, the students are expected to have read and thought about the assigned readings; they are expected to write about them weekly during class; and they are expected to talk/clarify their understandings in our weekly class.

Note: It is NOT possible to do well in this course without reading, thinking, writing and/or talking in each class! Also, the classes build on one another, so, if a student misses a class, it is imperative that s/he/they reads the assigned material and reviews notes taken by Accessibility Volunteers, which will be posted on OWL (it is not appropriate to ask the professor or the TA to recreate a lecture - it is of course fine to discuss the content of the course to seek clarification and deepen understanding).

Students' effort and performance will be assessed in the following way:

- Meetings with TAs – 5% (ongoing)
- Participation (in-lecture talking and writing) – 15% (ongoing)
- Midterm – 20% (October 22)
- Research Paper – 30% (November 22)
- Final Exam – 30% (University administration announces the date later in the fall)

Meetings with TAs: you are strongly encouraged to talk to your TA during office hours. You will be assigned to the same TA for the duration of the semester during the first lecture and you will be able to see them during 8 weeks of the course – the schedule of weeks with office hours is posted below and will be confirmed by your particular TA. You can get up to 5% of course grade for seeing your TA at least 5 times (1%/visit). Note, you earn the points when you come to discuss course content, and/or preparation of papers and exams! The intention here is to reward search for understanding and engagement with course material as well as to support you in your assignments as you navigate your first year in university. There is no make-up for not coming to see your TA.

Participation (in-lecture talking and writing): during the first class you will be put in a small group of up to 4 people (the groups will stay more or less the same through the semester to help you build connections). You will earn 0,5 points for attending each class (for the maximum of 5); the other 10 points will be awarded based on your in-class engagement. More specifically, during 9 lectures – excluding 1, 6 and 7 - you will be asked questions about required readings and you will talk about them in small groups. You will then compose individual short answers to your questions and the class will debrief them in general discussion. The aim is to reward attendance and active engagement with course material; it is also meant to help you hone your speaking and writing skills. There is no make-up for missed classes, simply a suggestion to attend class in the future.

Midterm Exam will take place in class 6 (October 22) and will cover all material from weeks 2-5 (lectures as well as required readings and news items). You will have 2 hours to write it. It will include ‘define and explain the significance’ type of questions and up to two short essays questions. No electronic devices will be allowed (unless you write your exam with Accessibility Services). You will have to provide medical documentation if you miss this test due to an emergency (more on this is University Policies section below). If your consideration request is granted, you will write a make-up exam on an alternative date.

Research Paper will be 2500 words long. You will be required to use class materials AND do additional empirical research in order to answer one of three questions posted online. The paper will be due on OWL (via Turnitin) at 11:55 pm on November 22. It will be accepted - with no penalty - until 11:55pm on November 24. Since the submission deadline has a built in flexibility of 48 hours grace period, no further accommodation/extensions will be granted. NOTE, you must submit your paper via OWL; no paper that has not gone through Turnitin will be accepted.

Final Exam will be announced in the fall and will take place in the Examination Period after the last day of class in December. It will be 2 hours long, in-person. It will cover ALL course material and will consist of up to 6 short essay answers. No electronic devices will be allowed (unless you write your exam with Accessibility Services). All final exams are subject to medical documentation requirement for consideration to be contemplated. If you miss the exam and if the consideration is granted, you will write the make-up final on an alternative date.

Course Structure and Policies:

Weekly class meets once per week for two hours. There are NO tutorials. Each class will have a lecture component and a small group discussion component. In most classes, we will also discuss important learning issues: ‘what is the point of university?’ ‘what’s the point of grades?’ ‘what is a thesis?’ ‘what is academic integrity?’ ‘how to write a good paper?’ ‘what is a normative, explanatory or descriptive paper?’ ‘what is causality?’ In each class, we will address what you find unclear in the readings. Come ready with questions, examples, comments. (If you need to be late, you do not need to inform anybody beforehand, but please be mindful that lecture will proceed and enter quietly.)

Our weekly classes are not recorded or posted to OWL. Furthermore, no materials generated in this class may be recorded or copied without permission, or posted to commercial sites. They may be used, with attribution, in students' learning and writing. (Weekly PowerPoint will be posted on OWL on Monday following the class. Notes for Accessibility Volunteers will also be posted to OWL.)

Absenteeism: This course rewards active class participation and discourages absenteeism and inattentiveness (15% of class grade rides on attendance with additional 5% on talking about the course with your TA). This is reinforced by departmental policy at the Department of Gender, Sexuality and Women's Studies - persistent absenteeism may be grounds for failure in the course. Persistent absenteeism comes into play if you miss 3 classes! In other words, do not skip lectures. And come prepared. You do not need to inform us before missing a class, but you must discuss your attendance with the Professor, if you miss 3 classes! You should also seek help from Academic Advising (see below). Please note, that two allowed absences are not in addition to sickness and emergencies you may encounter – the allowed absences are there to accommodate illness and emergency!

Discussion Etiquette: Our class conversations are explorations, not a competition. In assigning your mark, I look at a) the quantity, and b) the quality of your remarks, c) listening and respect for the views of others, and d) a spirit of discovery.

Assignments: deadlines are not suggestions; they are real. All class work is done in class; the research paper has a built-in submission flexibility, it thus has no further extensions; if you miss the midterm or the final exam, you need to seek Academic Consideration and you need to provide documentation. Please note, emergencies do happen, so plan for this possibility and do the work early. Learning to manage time is a way is an important skill and a way to manage anxiety.

Computer Use: Computer use by students in class is not allowed. This includes any electronic device such as a laptop or a phone. Three to four students – Accessibility Services volunteers - will use laptops to take notes (they will be asked to submit their notes to me and I will post them to OWL; they will not be allowed to have internet on). No electronic aids are allowed during class examinations (mid-term and final), unless you write them in Accessibility office. Phone use in class results in 0 attendance points.

Use of Generative Artificial Intelligence (AI) (automatic translation tools, grammar checkers, ChatGPT...) is prohibited. If AI use is suspected, the professor will ask for research notes, rough drafts, essay outlines, and other materials used in preparing assignments. The professor will also ask the student to explain the full argument orally. An inability to produce requested materials and answer questions to professor's satisfaction, may result in a failed assignment.

Turnitin: the paper in this class will undergo textual similarity review by the commercial plagiarism detection software for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. As per above, no paper will be accepted unless submitted through OWL and routed to Turnitin (it is the students' responsibility to ensure this is done successfully.)

Contesting a Grade: After you receive a grade, read your comments and wait at least two days before you write to anybody about it (TAs will be authorized to establish email embargos and not respond to emails for 2 days before OR after the assignments). If you have questions concerning received grade, please contact your TA and come to office hours to discuss it. If, after this conversation, you wish to contest received grades, you should submit a one-page single-spaced, typed request, within two weeks of the returned assignment. The request has to outline the reason why you think you deserve higher points ("needing" a higher grade is not an acceptable reason for grade appeal - as per departmental policy). Specific reference should be made to the instructions and guidelines for that assignment. The request should include the graded assignment. Students should note that points could go up or down as a result of an appeal. Requests for appeals outside of the two-week window will not be considered.

There are no appeals on the small in-class writing, office hours attendance and class participation.

Communication with TAs: Teaching Assistants are here to guide you and help you navigate your path through the course; they are also here to grade your work. But, there are two of them and 100 of you, so keep this in mind before emailing! If you have a question, check the syllabus, check the OWL site, come to office hours and hopefully you will have found your answer. If you do need to email, please note that TAs will specify their reply times and please respect them.

IMPORTANT: If you do email your TA, please cc the professor – I will not respond to the emails, but will want a documentation of your conversations. I may intervene if I consider the tone of emails inappropriate. In your communications, please use formal address and professional tone and conventions – you are in professional relationship with senior colleagues whose expertise you seek and need to navigate the course.

Communication with the Professor: Please bring your questions to class or direct them to your Teaching Assistants, or come to see me in office hours. If you do email me, I will take up to 48 hours to respond outside of weekends and there are many emails to which I don't respond individually – either your question is brilliant, in which case I'll answer it via a class announcement; or the answer is in the syllabus, which you are strongly encouraged to read.

Note, ALL grade-related questions have to be asked in office hours - not email. In other words, if you email anybody about a specific grade, we will not respond and assume you are coming to office hours to discuss.

13. December 3: Review

Western University & Arts and Humanities’ Policies & Supports (don’t skip this!)

---

- Our work in this course is guided by the University’s Scholastic Discipline document and all offences are taken seriously.
- Students with disabilities work with Accessible Education, which provides recommendations for accommodation based on medical documentation or other testing. Students with disabilities are encouraged to read the policy and register with Accessible Education at the earliest opportunity.
- Academic Advising and Consideration - as opposed to Accessible Education - offers support whenever students face issues affecting their studies, including guidance on adding/dropping courses, academic considerations for absences, appeals, exam conflicts, and many other academic related matters. Academic Advising should be sought at student's home faculty (the contacts for all faculties is found here). Requests for consideration on specific assignments should be submitted to the Office of the Registrar. As per Senate policy all consideration requests must be filed within 48 hours of the assignment. NOTE, is the professor who approves the accommodation, NOT the Advisor, but you need to contact Advising to submit documentation.

- Counsellors at the Learning Development and Success Centre are ready to help students improve their learning skills. They offer presentations on time management, multiple-choice exam preparation/writing, textbook reading, and more. Individual support is offered throughout the Fall/Winter terms in the drop-in Learning Help Centre, and year-round through individual counselling.
- Students should review the policy for Accommodation for Religious Holidays. Where a student will be unable to write examinations and term tests due to a conflicting religious holiday, they should inform their instructors as soon as possible but not later than two weeks prior to writing the examination/term test.
- Students who are in emotional/mental distress should refer to Mental Health@Western to obtain help.
- If students need assistance with OWL Brightspace, they can seek support here. Alternatively, they can contact the Western Technology Services Helpdesk online or by phone at 519-661-3800 or ext. 83800 for technical support. Current versions of all popular browsers (e.g., Safari, Chrome, Edge, Firefox) are supported with OWL Brightspace; what is most important is that you update your browser frequently to ensure it is current. All JavaScript and cookies should be enabled.
- Faculty of Arts and Humanities mandates the following statement on Gender-based and sexual violence: “Western University is committed to reducing incidents of gender-based and sexual violence (GBSV) and providing compassionate support to anyone who is going through or has gone through these traumatic events. If you are experiencing or have experienced GBSV (either recently or in the past), you will find information about support services for survivors, including emergency contacts at this website. To connect with a case manager or set up an appointment, please contact support@uwo.ca.”

Please note: under the new Gender-based and Sexual Violence policy instructors are required to refer any and all incidents of sexual violence disclosed in class. The student will then be contacted by the GBSV Survivor Support Case Manager and can receive and decline assistance of that office.

- Additional student-run support services are offered by the University Student Centre.
