

Propaedeutics for Comparatists

Spring Term 2023
Wednesdays 9:30-12:20pm
Room: UC 3320 (or on Zoom)

Professor James Miller
jmiller@uwo.ca
ex 85828

i. Course Description

Having passed through the Gate of Hell, Dante abruptly recoils at the confused sound of “diverse tongues, horrible speeches, painful words, cries of rage, voices loud and faint” [diverse lingue, orribili favelle, / parole di dolore, accenti d’ira, / voci alte e fioche: Inf. 3.25-27]. Replace Dante with yourself at the start of your Comparative Literature MA program, and you’ll soon find serious grounds for empathizing with his state of polyglot panic. Having crossed over the threshold of graduate studies, you are bound to face an intimidating confusion of course requirements, research instructions, multilingual bibliographies, thesis statements, scholarship applications, theoretical jargons, clashing arguments, illogical conclusions, and voices loud and faint telling you what you need to accomplish en route to your degree. Where is Virgil when you need him? Fortunately a trustworthy guide is at hand, marching beside you in the form of this required course on research methodology, thesis writing, and academic professionalization. The course is divided into four units. The first unit covers Research Methods appropriate for the discipline of Comparative Literature. You will learn how Comparatists have historically distinguished their discipline from other kinds of literary studies; why Comparatists are careful to formulate specific research questions within a broad topic and a broader field of inquiry; and what dialectical strategies contribute to the strength of a Comparative Literary argument. The second unit will consider the complex overlapping histories of the three main cultural institutions – the Library, the Archive, and the Internet – to which Comparatists routinely turn for sources in the search for answers to their research questions. The third unit focuses on the various academic genres which serve to shape the critical expectations of the educated readers for which Comparatists commonly write their works. And the fourth unit concentrates on the prospective form and organization of the Major Research Paper (MRP).

ii. Grading Method / Assignments

CL9503B is graded on a PASS / FAIL basis. If you submit the four written assignments by posting them on the course website in accordance with the submission schedule [see section v below], and if you attend class regularly and participate thoughtfully and constructively, then you will pass the course. There are two ways to fail the course: (1) don't attend class; and (2) don't submit completed assignments.

There will be one assignment for each of the four units: (1) formulation of a series of research questions within a defined research topic; (2) analytical précis of the argument of one chapter from Melas; (3) review of any thesis in Comparative Literature archived online or at the LC departmental office; and (4) prospectus for the Major Research Paper (MRP), including bibliography.

iii. Schedule of Topics and Readings

(1) UNIT ONE: Research Methods

WEEK ONE: January 11

Know Your Discipline: What is distinctive about research in Comparative Literature?

READ: All the Difference in the World by Natalie Melas

[Ideally you should have this book read by the first class: I suggest that you start on it over the holidays]

WEEK TWO: January 18

Formulate Your Question: What distinguishes a research question from a research topic?

READ: The Craft of Research (Third Edition) by Wayne C. Booth et al. [chapter 3]

WEEK THREE: January 25

Responding to the “So What?” query: What distinguishes a research question from a research problem?

READ: The Craft of Research --> Wayne C. Booth et al. [chapter 4-5]

DEADLINE: January 27 --> Assignment #1 [send PDF to Prof Miller for uploading on OWL]

WEEK FOUR: February 1

Construct Your Argument: What distinguishes strong from weak arguments in literary studies?

READ: The Craft of Research --> Wayne C. Booth et al. [chapter 7-10]

(2) UNIT TWO: Research Institutions

WEEK FIVE: February 8

The Library, The Archive, and The Internet

READ: History of Libraries in the Western World by Michael H. Harris [SCAN: Selected excerpts]; Understanding Archives & Manuscripts [SCAN: selected excerpts]

(3) UNIT THREE: Academic Genres

WEEK SEVEN: February 15

small genres: statement of intent, conference abstract, conference presentation

READ: ONLINE TEXTS (t.b.a.)

DEADLINE: February 17 --> Assignment #2 [send PDF to Prof Miller for uploading on OWL]

WEEK EIGHT: February 22
Spring Reading Week – no class

WEEK NINE: March 1
medium-size genres: book review, literature review, scholarly article
READ: ONLINE TEXTS (t.b.a.)

WEEK TEN: March 8
large-scale genres: thesis, book (how are they different?)
READ: Any archived thesis in the MLL department office [see Sylvia]

DEADLINE: March 15 → Assignment #3 [send PDF to Prof Miller before class]

(4) UNIT FOUR: Major Research Paper

WEEK ELEVEN: March 22
How is a prospectus different from a statement of intent?
READ: Any archived thesis in the MLL department office [see Sylvia]

WEEK TWELVE: March 29
How should a major research paper or thesis be organized so that your research questions are logically sequenced and persuasively answered?
READ: Any archived thesis in the LC department office [see Sylvia] or on SGPS database

DEADLINE: April 12 → Assignment #4 [send PDF to Prof Miller for uploading on OWL]

WEEK THIRTEEN: April 5
No class → individual consultation sessions scheduled between 9:30am and 12:20pm

v. Schedule of Submission for Assignments

Assignment #1: formulation of a series of research questions within a defined research topic of your own choosing → Post on course website by January 27, 2022 [submit PDF for uploading on OWL]

Assignment #2: analytical précis of the argument of one chapter from Melas, All the Difference in the World
→ Post on course website by February 17, 2022 [submit PDF for uploading on OWL]

Assignment #3: review of any thesis in Comparative Literature archived at the LC department office or in GSPS electronic thesis and dissertation repository → Post on course website by March 15, 2022 [submit PDF before class on March 15]

Assignment #4: draft of prospectus for Major Research Paper → Post on course website by April 12, 2022 [submit PDF for uploading on OWL]

iv. Readings

Students are expected to order their own copies of the following two books:

1. The Craft of Research (Third Edition) --> Wayne C. Booth et al.

Paperback: 336 pages

- Publisher: University Of Chicago Press; 3 edition (April 15 2008)
- ISBN-10: 0226065669
- ISBN-13: 978-0226065663

2. All the Difference in the World --> Natalie Melas

Paperback: 304 pages

Publisher: Stanford University Press; 1 edition (Dec 8 2006)

- ISBN-10: 0804731985
- ISBN-13: 978-0804731980

Scanned Excerpts from the following two books will be provided on OWL:

3. History of Libraries in the Western World --> Michael H. Harris

Paperback: 312 pages

Publisher: Scarecrow Press; 4 edition (July 29 1999)

- ISBN-10: 0810837242
- ISBN-13: 978-0810837249

4. Understanding Archives & Manuscripts

Series: Archival Fundamentals Series

Paperback: 237 pages

- Publisher: Society of Amer Archivists (July 2006)
- ISBN-10: 1931666202
- ISBN-13: 978-1931666206