SOURCE TEXTS

J.L. Austin (1961). Philosophical Papers. 3rd Edition. Oxford: Oxford University Press.
H. Paul Grice (1989). Studies in the Ways of Words. Cambridge: Harvard University Press.
Peter F. Strawson (2004). Logico-Linguistic Papers. 2nd Edition. Aldershot, England: Ashgate.
Ludwig Wittgenstein (1953). Philosophical Investigations. Translated by Elizabeth Anscombe. Oxford: Basil Blackwell.

OBJECTIVES

The twin objectives are to hone students' philosophical skills (e.g., writing, reading and debating at the highest level) and to introduce them to important material from the recent history of Analytic philosophy in general and philosophy of language in particular.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Class Participation: 15%
Seven Short "Briefing Notes": 35%
In-class Mid-Term Test: 25%

Final Essay: 25%

Essay: The paper should be the sort of thing one could submit to a student conference – ideally about 14 double-spaced pages in length. It may be either more empirical or more philosophical, depending upon the interests and background of the student.

With the exception of students granted special accommodation, no electronic devices will be permitted during the test. Use of handheld devices and browsing of websites during class is very strongly discouraged, as it distracts both the user and his/her neighbours.

Submission instructions

- All written work must be submitted, in anonymous form and in hard-copy, either in class or by means of the Philosophy drop box (on the first floor of Stevenson Hall, beside the elevator).
- It must also be submitted electronically to Turnitin: “All required papers are subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted for such checking will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between The University of Western Ontario and Turnitin.com (<http://www.turnitin.com>).”
- Late submissions will not be accepted without explicit prior permission of the instructor and/or proper medical documentation.
