COURSE DESCRIPTION

The topic for this course—political philosophy in England, 1645-1652—may seem very narrow. But this was a tumultuous time in English political history, and a similarly tumultuous time in English political philosophy. We will survey the key works of political philosophy written in these years, including Hobbes's Leviathan and essays by Hobbes's theocratic critic Robert Filmer, the radical egalitarian Parliamentarians known as the Levellers, and the even more radically egalitarian and commune-dwelling Diggers. Many important and enduring ideas and themes in subsequent English and European political philosophy were first developed in these few years; we will examine these ideas when they were new and bold (as many remain).

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Students in this course will learn some core texts in the history of political philosophy and, through them, the foundations of many central ideas in the liberal democratic tradition and its critics. Through in-class essays they will have the opportunity to develop skills in writing and analysis.

TEXTS

There will be one paper text: Hobbes, Leviathan (Hackett, 1994). The rest of the course material can be accessed online through Western Libraries.

METHOD OF EVALUATION

1. Two in-class essays (30% each = 60%). These will be essays you will prepare just as you would an essay written at home, but you will write the final draft by hand in class (without notes). Topics will be given well in advance; in each case you will be able to choose from two options. Expectations about format, length, etc. will be discussed in class.

2. A final exam (40%). You will be asked to answer any four out of a list of eight questions, with short essays, in two hours.

DEPARTMENT OF PHILOSOPHY POLICIES

The Department of Philosophy policies that govern the conduct, standards, and expectations for student participation in Philosophy courses are available in the Undergraduate section of the Department of Philosophy website <http://uwo.ca/philosophy/undergraduate/policies.html>. It is your responsibility to understand the policies set out by the Senate and the Department of Philosophy, and thus ignorance of these policies cannot be used as grounds of appeal.

ACADEMIC ACCOMMODATION AND ACCESSIBLE EDUCATION

Academic Accommodation is “a means of adjusting the academic activities associated with a course or program of student in order to permit students with disabilities to participate in those activities at the University and to fulfill the essential requirements of a course or program.”

<https://www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academicpolicies/appeals/Academic%20Accommodationdisabilities.pdf>. Students with disabilities are encouraged to register with Accessible Education at the earliest opportunity. “Accessible Education plays a central role in Western's efforts to ensure that its academic programs are accessible for all students”

SPECIAL EXAMINATIONS

A Special Examination is any examination other than the regular examination, and it may be offered only with the permission of the Dean of the Faculty in which the student is registered, in consultation with the instructor and Department Chair. Permission to write a Special Examination may be given on the basis of compassionate or medical grounds with appropriate supporting documents. To provide an opportunity for students to recover from the circumstances resulting in a Special Examination, the University has implemented Special Examinations dates. These dates as well as other important information about examinations and academic standing can be found here.

ACADEMIC CONSIDERATION

Students may request academic consideration in cases of extenuating circumstances – that is, personal circumstances beyond the student’s control that have a substantial but temporary impact on the student’s ability to meet essential academic requirements.

1. Requests for academic consideration are made to the Academic Advising office of Faculty in which the student is registered.
2. Requests for academic consideration include the following components:
  - a. Self-attestation signed by the student;
  - b. Indication of the course(s) and assessment(s) relevant to the request;
  - c. Supporting documentation as relevant

Requests without supporting documentation are limited to one per term per course.

Documentation for medical illness, when required, includes the completion of a Western Student Medical Certificate \(SMC\) or, where that is not possible, equivalent documentation, by a health care practitioner. Requests linked to examinations scheduled by the Office of the Registrar during official examination periods as well as practice laboratory and performance tests typically scheduled in the last week of term always require formal supporting documentation.
