A seminar on some of the main theories of/issues in global justice in recent political theory. Part I introduces the two main theoretical perspectives, cosmopolitan and nationalist. and discusses global distributive justice (i.e. issues of wealth, poverty, inequality). Parts II and III look briefly at issues of retributive and reparative justice (i.e. punishment and compensation).

Assignments:

1. 4206a: An essay, 12/15 pages, due on April 6, worth 70%. Late penalty 2% per day. Normally the essay will be on one of the week's topics, drawing on the set readings plus the supplementary reading for that week. 9762a/9121a: as above, but the essay should be 15-20 pages.

2. A weekly one-page (single-spaced) report summarizing what you take to be important in the two set readings, to be handed in at the seminar. There is no mark for this assignment, but students who fail to submit at least 8 reports during the term will not be eligible for a participation mark. The report is simply intended to ensure that members of the group are in a position to exchange views about the readings. 9726a/9121a: as above, but the weekly report is to be 1.5 pages (single-spaced) and must cover the supplementary reading for the week in addition.

3. Participation mark: 30%. This is a seminar course and it works only if everyone does their best to contribute to discussion. The expectation is that no student will let more than two weeks go by without making a contribution. Feel free to introduce questions about aspects of the readings that puzzle you, disappoint or annoy you – this is in fact a very important contribution from which the whole group benefits.

Required readings are posted on OWL, files titled "GJ" + the week's number. Supplementary readings are posted under the author's surname.
