1. SUBJECT

DAP: Philosophy 2250: Introduction to Logic, to be introduced at Huron University College

2. EFFECTIVE DATE, PROPOSAL, FACULTY TO OFFER IT, CALENDAR COPY

Effective September 1, 2009, Philosophy 2222A/B: Introduction to Logic, will be withdrawn from course offerings at Huron University College. [Since the course is withdrawn, no calendar copy would be included with this proposal.]

Effective September 1, 2009, Philosophy 2250: Introduction to Logic, will be introduced to replace it at Huron University College. If approved, the new course should be added to the list of antirequisites for Philosophy 2020: Basic Logic. (Calendar Copy is on page 374 of the UWO 2008 calendar)

Philosophy 2250: Introduction to Logic

A study of sentential and predicate logic, to train students to use procedures and systems (trees, natural deduction, axiomatic systems) for determining logical properties of sentences, sets of sentences, and to give students an understanding of syntactic and semantic metatheoretical concepts and results relevant to those procedures and systems.

Antirequisite(s): Philosophy 2020, 2252W/X, the former Philosophy 222a/b.
3 hours, 1.0 course
(Huron)

3. BACKGROUND

The new full-year course in first-order logic will replace the half-course (2222A/B) at Huron University College. The Department believes that a 0.5 course in logic does not adequately prepare students who are proceeding in an Honor Specialization or Major module in philosophy.

The new course will be taught three hours per week and will include the content of the existing 0.5 course and additional course content on the metatheory that lies behind the material traditionally presented in 2222A/B.

If the new course proposal is accepted, the requirements for the Honors Specialization and Major modules at Huron University College will be amended in a separate submission to DAP.
