DEPARTMENTAL COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is interested in the interdisciplinary study of heterosexuality. Topics covered will include: social and historical productions of (hetero)sexualities; cultural performances of (hetero)sexualities; heterosexual pleasures and dangers; heterosexed pornographies and sex-work; erotic (hetero)sexual power play; and heterosexualities that cross the boundaries of (cis)gender, race, age, ability, class and nation, 3 lecture hours, 0.5 course.

DETAILED COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will employ an interdisciplinary approach to explore heterosexualities. In the first unit of the course, students will develop a conceptual understanding of heterosexualities. They will become familiar with discourse, hegemony, and performance as key concepts for navigating heterosexualities. The second unit will centre on heterosexualities in history and in memory. The class will consider how a social understanding of ‘heterosexuality’ developed in the Victorian era. Students will examine heterosexualities in Second World War Britain. The course will consider the impact of heterosexualities on the personal memories and identities of people who lived through the conflict. Unit three will unpack heterosexualities in contemporary culture including in feminist autobiography, young adult literature, film and reality television, and pornography. The final unit will consider the impact of heterosexualities on society - most significantly in communities of colour and in contemporary politics. Through our examination of heterosexualities, this course will provide insight into the following questions: how have heterosexualities impacted people’s lived experiences and histories? How have people lived and acted outside of the margins of heterosexuality? How have heterosexualities changed over the course of time and location? How have heterosexualities impacted the ways in which people view, perform, and experience sex? How have heterosexualities influenced people’s performance of gender? How have class, race, and ability impacted how people view, experience, and perform heterosexualities?

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Students will develop their understanding of heterosexualities through an interdisciplinary approach. They will demonstrate their ability to make connections between, and critically engage with, interdisciplinary scholarship on heterosexualities through critical analysis of readings, classroom discussion, and course assessments. Students will come to appreciate the myriad of ways that heterosexualities have impacted peoples’ experiences, understandings of self, their relationships with others, and participation in society. During this course, students will learn how cultural expressions of heterosexualities both represent and influence people’s most personal feelings and experiences. Students will learn that experiences, feelings, culture, history, and society also exist outside of the margins of heterosexuality. Students are encouraged to connect the course content with their personal experience.

EVALUATION

Class Participation (20% of Final Grade) - This class involves student engagement in the learning process through active contributions to class discussions. It is crucial to note that mere attendance is not sufficient to warrant a good participation grade. Students will be evaluated based on the quality and regularity of their contributions to class discussions.

Critical Book Review (15% of Final Grade) 5 pages, standard font and margins, due October 23 - Following discussing Kaleigh Trace’s 2014 autobiography, Hot, Wet, and Shaking in our in-class book club activity, students will be asked to write an individual critical book review. The point of this assignment is to provide a critical argument regarding the book using the core concepts discussed in week one (heterosexuality, discourse, hegemony, and performance). Your review should be organized around a clear thesis. You should consider the primary questions of the course listed above in your analysis.

Presentation (10% of Final Grade) 10 minutes - Students will make a 10 minute presentation regarding a course reading that they will choose in Week 1. (Students will not be permitted to choose a reading from the final week). In the week that corresponds with their reading (starting Week 2), students will deliver their presentation prior to our main discussion of the reading. This presentation will involve a very brief summary of the reading followed by critical analysis. Remember, your classmates are expected to have completed the reading on their own and it is not your job to summarize the entire reading. The point of the brief summary is to: (1) emphasize what you take to be the most important elements of the reading and (2) provide necessary context for your critical analysis. The majority of your grade will be determined by your critical analysis of the reading. This analysis should be organized around a clear thesis. You should consider the primary questions of the course listed above in your analysis.
Critical Comparative Essay (25% of Final Grade) 8 pages, standard font and margins, due November 20 - Students will be asked to compare two readings from the course in a critical comparative essay. You may choose the reading that you presented (will present) to the class along with another reading. Please exclude readings from the final week and Trace’s Hot Wet and Shaking. Please choose two readings from two different units of the class. The goal of this assignment is not to summarize the readings but to make a critical argument comparing and contrasting the articles in connection to what you have learned about heterosexuality, discourse, hegemony, and performance.

Exam (30% of Final Grade) Date TBT - Students will be required to compose two short essays, selected from a range of questions addressing major themes and debates identified in the course readings. Exam questions will require students to draw on material from multiple weeks.

WOMEN’S STUDIES GRADING CRITERIA

A+ (90 to 100)

One could scarcely expect better from a student at this level

A (80 and up)

Superior work which is clearly above average • Challenging and specific thesis that is clearly developed • Correct and interesting sentence structure • Sophisticated writing style • Appropriate documentation • Quotations well integrated into the text, with proper documentation • Evidence of originality or independence of thought • Provision of strong analysis • Complexity, and subtlety in approach to subject • Well-organized with a logical development of the argument

B (70 to 79)

Good work, meeting all requirements, and eminently satisfactory • Clear development of a specific thesis, with proper paragraphs • Correct sentence structure • Adequate documentation • Allowance for some (minor) problems such as: • errors in factual content or interpretation • some minor errors in terminology or general writing skills • occasional lapses in clarity, including vagueness, incompleteness, flaws in structure • Provision of some analysis Note: A grade in the range of 75-79 indicates an essay that borders on an A but has some significant flaw that prevents giving out the higher grade.

C (60 to 69)

Competent work, meeting requirements • Generally correct but tends to provide more description than analysis • Tends to be too general or superficial in the handling of material • Weaknesses in argument including a descriptive thesis, a mechanical approach, lack of adequate evidence, documentation, or support • Problems with grammar or matters of style • Simplicity of thought, structure, or expression

D (50 to 59)

Fair work, minimally acceptable • Does not provide an argument or a line of thought • Major difficulties with logical structure, and expression of ideas • Topic has not been thought through •
